

MEDICAL EDUCATION READINESS PROGRAM

Know Before You Go Fact Sheet

MERP does not confer degrees or offer transferable credits.

What Will I Learn and Experience in My Studies?

This is a 15-week program that provides courses in Clinical Anatomy, Medical Biochemistry/Molecular Biology, Medical Microbiology/Immunology, Medical Physiology/Biophysics and Academic Success. These courses offer similar instruction to those taught in early semesters of a medical school curriculum.

During the course of the program, formal assessments are administered to evaluate students' progress at MERP. In addition, three exams, with USMLE-style multiple-choice questions, account for the majority of the final grade.

Program Fees and Financing Options

Tuition for the MERP program is $13,500. Additional program costs include health insurance, books and supplies, and room and board.

The following payment options are available:

- Full payment at time of enrollment
- Private loan through bank
- Installment payment plan

Students who do not successfully complete the program receive a refund of the full program fee. The refund is limited to program fees only and does not reimburse the costs of health insurance, housing, travel or living expenses incurred.

What Services Will I Receive?

Services available to all students include:

- One-on-one advising, study skill instruction, and team-based learning through our Academic Success Program
- Frequent assessments to gauge progress and identify potential obstacles
- Integrated clinical cases, discussed in instructor-led small-group settings
- Individualized attention for students experiencing challenges in absorbing course content

Program Outcomes

The percentage of students attempting the prep program in fiscal year 2019-20 who advanced to the American University of the Caribbean School of Medicine or Ross University School of Medicine is 67%.
